

as we can. There is no pride in falling into sin. There is nothing gay or happy about living a sinful life for any of us. There are no 'pride' parades for liars, cheats, thieves, murderers or adulterers and for good reason. There is nothing gay about sin, nor is sin anything of which to be proud.

There Is Nothing Gay About Homosexuality

If there was ever an oxymoron it would have to be with the use of the word "gay" when used by those espousing homosexuality. There is nothing within the lifestyle of active homosexuality that is gay, or happy if you will. It is perhaps one of the most riskiest and unhealthy of lifestyles and certainly one of the saddest. At the outset, it must be said that there is no conclusive evidence or proof that people who have a same sex attraction are born with it, nor is there any conclusive evidence of what is the cause of this attraction.

What is so gay about living a life that revolves around your sexuality? Since when is proclaiming your sexual preference a cause to hold "Pride" parades? I've heard people in the course of normal conversation say they're gay. Why would they say that and out of the blue? What is that to me or anyone else? Why would I go around telling others out of hand that I'm a heterosexual? I don't identify myself with some bodily function, but as a man. A human being. Normally, what people identify themselves as is what they feel is the most important about themselves. If ones world revolves around ones gonads there is a serious problem.

If you doubt that militant homosexuals do not identify themselves by their sexuality, go to a gay pride parade, where the participants expose themselves to the bystanders, dress in a manner that places emphasis on their private parts and at times, even commit a sexual act in public or pretend to have sex. It's there for all to see if you have the stomach for it. Several years ago, homosexuals barged into a Catholic church and threw condoms at the celebrant who I believe was a bishop. This is not being gay but angry.

There was a time, not long ago, when we were told that homosexuals wanted to be left alone to live their lives in peace as they saw fit. Yet that is not the case. California experienced this lack of peaceful demonstration from homosexuals when they voted against gay marriage. The Mormon and Catholic Church experienced how 'peaceful' homosexuals were as their churches were vandalized and horrid threats were voiced against them for opposing same sex marriage. So peaceful....so gay.

Stacey Trancencos at acceptingabundance.com was also a recipient of the anger and hatred of homosexuals because of a posting on her blog a few months back. Her children were threatened with rape in the comments section of the blog following her post. Nice eh? The homosexual hate and anger for those that do not accept homosexuality as normal is thick and frightening.

What is so gay about contracting a disease from unnatural sexual acts between two men?? A disease that kills and has no cure? Why is abstaining from sex not an option, when ones life is in the balance and abstinence would go a long way in stopping this disease in its tracks? What is so gay about having a string of anonymous sexual encounters, sometimes over a hundred of them, and for what? Sharing anger? Using others repeatedly for ones own pleasure? This is nothing but selfishness and hate for another human being. This is not a cause to be gay.

NAMBLA is an organization of men wanting to have sex with very young underage boys. They have a website and they advertise their intents and teach its members how to entice young innocent boys for no other reason than to have sex with them. This is sex between young underage boys and men. This is a cause to be gay? Is this a reason for us to accept homosexuality as a good and normal thing? Think again.

This whole notion that active homosexuality is normal, with its participants gay or happy and they just want to be left alone is a lie. It has always been a lie and will always be a lie. They are on the march to force everyone to accept homosexuality as a good and normal lifestyle. They employ hate and intolerance towards anyone that does not agree with them and will use violence as a means to achieve their end.

There is no "gayness" in being gay, but there is plenty of rage. Rage stemming from guilt of what they do, but directed towards others that will not accept what they do as good and normal. Like us, they are sinners with a weakened nature because of the fall of Adam, yet instead of acknowledging this weakness and trying to rise above it with the grace of God, they display their weakness as if a badge of honor and fail miserably, falling deeper in their misery. The high rate of suicides among homosexuals is telling of this misery. There is nothing gay about suicide.

I am angry also. I am angry with the repeated attempts by militant gays to coerce me into accepting homosexuality as normal and good. I am angry with the attempts by militant homosexuals to try to induce young children into the perversity of homosexual sins while the rest of the world is clamoring for a cure for AIDS. A disease that kills. Why introduce children into a world that consists of misery and anger? Why would anyone risk the life of a child in this manner unless it stems from hate?

There are those who have same sex attractions who live celibate lives. Many are Christian and know that sex outside a marriage, a marriage that can only consist of a man and woman, is sinful. They live with their attraction to the same sex as best as possible. We all have weaknesses and we are all called to live our lives with these weaknesses as best
